

Mata Ortiz Pottery: A Collector's Guide to the Art of Juan Quezada and His Descendants

Mata Ortiz pottery is a type of Mexican folk art that is known for its intricate designs and vibrant colors. It is made in the village of Mata Ortiz, Chihuahua, Mexico, by the indigenous Tarahumara people. The pottery is named after Juan Quezada, who is considered to be the father of Mata Ortiz pottery. Quezada began making pottery in the 1950s, and he quickly developed a unique style that was inspired by the ancient pottery of the Mimbres people.

Juan Quezada's pottery is characterized by its fine lines, geometric designs, and use of natural pigments. He often used a slip-trailing technique to create his designs, which involves trailing a thin line of clay onto the surface of the pot. Quezada's pottery is also known for its vibrant colors, which he achieved by using natural pigments such as iron oxide, copper oxide, and manganese oxide.

Quezada's pottery quickly became popular, and he soon began to teach his techniques to other members of his community. Today, there are many potters in Mata Ortiz who produce pottery in the style of Juan Quezada. However, Quezada's work remains unique, and his pieces are highly sought after by collectors.

Mata Ortiz Pottery Buyer's Guide: The Earth's Bounty into Your Home's Beauty by Joan Breton Connelly

★★★★☆ 4.2 out of 5

Language : English

File size : 1571 KB

Text-to-Speech : Enabled

Screen Reader : Supported
Enhanced typesetting: Enabled
Print length : 62 pages
Lending : Enabled

Juan Quezada's descendants have continued to produce Mata Ortiz pottery in the style of their father. However, each potter has developed their own unique style, and there is a wide variety of Mata Ortiz pottery available today. Some of the most popular potters include:

- Rosa Quezada: Juan Quezada's daughter, Rosa, is a master potter in her own right. She is known for her delicate designs and use of bright colors.
- Nicolas Quezada: Juan Quezada's son, Nicolas, is also a master potter. He is known for his large, intricate pieces that often feature human and animal figures.
- Maria Quezada: Juan Quezada's granddaughter, Maria, is a rising star in the world of Mata Ortiz pottery. She is known for her innovative designs and use of new materials.

Mata Ortiz pottery is a popular collectible, and there are many collectors who specialize in this type of art. If you are interested in collecting Mata Ortiz pottery, there are a few things you should keep in mind:

- Authenticity: It is important to make sure that the pottery you are buying is authentic. There are many fake Mata Ortiz pottery pieces on the market, so it is important to do your research before you buy.
- Condition: The condition of the pottery is also important. Make sure that the pottery is free of cracks, chips, or other damage.
- Price: The price of Mata Ortiz pottery can vary depending on the potter, the size of the piece, and the complexity of the design. However, you can expect to pay anywhere from $100 to $1,000 for a piece of Mata Ortiz pottery.

Mata Ortiz pottery is a beautiful and unique art form that is highly prized by collectors. If you are interested in learning more about Mata Ortiz pottery, or if you are interested in collecting it, there are many resources available online and in libraries.

Mata Ortiz Pottery Buyer's Guide: The Earth's Bounty into Your Home's Beauty by Joan Breton Connelly

★★★★☆ 4.2 out of 5

Language	: English
File size	: 1571 KB
Text-to-Speech	: Enabled
Screen Reader	: Supported
Enhanced typesetting	: Enabled
Print length	: 62 pages
Lending	: Enabled

Barn Find Road Trip: Unearthing Hidden Automotive Treasures

In the realm of automotive enthusiasts, there exists an almost mythical allure to the concept of barn finds - classic or unique cars that have been left...

Workbook for Bessel van der Kolk's "The Body Keeps the Score": A Comprehensive Guide to Healing Trauma through Mind-Body Integration

Trauma is a pervasive issue that affects millions of people worldwide. Bessel van der Kolk's groundbreaking book, "The Body Keeps the Score," has revolutionized our...